by the Commissioners as to the indebtedness of employees (the complainants stating that after repeated applications to those concerned they have failed to obtain what is due), intimation should be given to the staff that they are expected to pay all their debts without delay. The Commissioners consider that their time should not be taken up with such matter, and that it is discreditable to the employees concerned that it should be. A report is required in a fortnight as to whether all old outstanding liabilities of employees have been met by them. If after that any further complaint is made, for which there is justification, the Commissioners will be prepared to take action. Inform the staff at your station accordingly, and report before the 1st instant whether these directions have been carried out by those concerned.

A member of the Marine Board was held yesterday afternoon. Theodore Bootham, master of the schooner Heath, which was wrecked off Cape Three Points, was called out to show cause why his certificate should not be suspended or cancelled. He stated that he thought he was steering a course which would have taken the vessel clear of danger. The board suspended his certificate for three months. The president then announced the decision of the board with regard to the loss of the ketch Integrity, which foundered off Broken Bay whilst on a voyage from Camelon Haven to Sydney. Captain Nixon announced that the board had decided that the abandonment of the vessel was justifiable, and that no evidence had been adduced upon which any charge could be founded against the captain, J. L. Ferguson. The board proceeded to take the statement of the captain of the brig Woolley, which was disabled during a gale whilst on the voyage from Sydney to the Solomon Islands; but as the evidence showed that the vessel was only disabled, and managed to reach her destination, the board decided that the case was not one for further investigation.

Tax following resolution was passed by the committee of the Albany Vine and Fruit Growers' Association on the 11th instant, and requested it be presented to the Vine Disease Board as early as convenient:—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, any further experimenting upon phylloxera infected vines with alleged species is not only useless, but dangerous, as tending needlessly to postpone that complete eradication of the vines by uprooting and burning, from which alone a complete extermination of the disease may be expected."

M. B. N. Jones has been the recipient of a very handsome present from the members of the intercolonial boating team. The team played in Melbourne against the Victorian boaters, and the wins on that occasion greatly assisted in their arrangements by Mr. Jones. In recognition of that gentleman's kindness the present referred to was decided upon. It consisted of a beautiful silver tea and coffee service. The presentation was made at the Glebe dinner on Saturday by Mr. J. T. Tooley.

The first children's religious service ever held at Sand Sea was presided over by Rev. Wm. J. Anderson, M.F.A., on Sunday. The singing was under the direction of Mr. W. Ross, who had very creditably prepared the young singers.

Sergeant-Commander JAMES BEADMAN, who is leaving Balmain, was the recipient of an address and diamond ring on Friday night at Leam's Hotel. The address and ring were presented by Alderman E. H. Bushman, the mayor of the borough, on behalf of a number of residents in recognition of Mr. Beadman's efficiency as an officer of the Marine police force. Among those present were Alderman Cyther and Burnie. Mr. Beadman replied to the compliment in suitable words.

We are in view in Messrs. Ellington and Co.'s window, 384, George-street, a very handsome solid dinner and dessert service which has been made at the firm's English works, in the order of a Queen Anne pattern. This service comprises a dinner service, a dessert service, a tea service, and a coffee service, all in solid silver. The dinner service is of plain but massive design, and the dessert service is of Egerton pattern. In all, the weight of the plate is 3000ozs., and it can be packed in a specially-constructed brass-bound oak case. The whole of the work fully maintains the high reputation of the firm of Messrs. Ellington and Co., whose English establishments are at Birmingham, London, and Liverpool. The plate will remain on the George-street window for a few days longer.

It seems (says the Brisbane Courier) that the scheme for supplying the locomotives required for the Queensland railway service by local manufacturers, if not broken down, at least not come up to sanguine expectations. Although, in order to give time to the successful local tenders, the necessary plans, together, the late Minister for Railways, Mr. Miles, stipulated that the first of the engines should not be delivered until two months after the signing of the contract, or in November next, it was hoped that some of them would be completed earlier than that date. The difficulties in the way of starting a new manufactory, however, proved greater than was anticipated, and no doubt the mistakes made in regard to an order on English founders for certain details of the engines, to which reference was made on more than one occasion in the last session of Parliament, contributed to the delay in the completion of the Government order, which it now turns out cannot be met under contract time. In the meanwhile the necessities of the department and the rapid opening of many additional lines of railway both south and north compelled the Government to give the go-by for the moment to local enterprise. The first question to be considered by the Cabinet was whether, for the new engines which were imperatively demanded for the railway, tenders should be called in Great Britain only, or from a wider field. It was, however, felt that if we go out of England, whence we derive the capital for our local expenditure, would be, to say the least, ungracious, and when the Agent-General was cabled to seek offers for the supply of 15 locomotives for goods traffic he was instructed to limit the tenders to British manufacturers. It is alleged that nothing has been lost by this, and that the tenders for the supply of engines required have been received from Messrs. Mawson, Wilson, and Co., of Manchester, at the satisfactory low figure of £1599 for each engine. Five of these engines, which are much wanted for the Southern and Western lines and its branches, are to be delivered in London in four months from date, and the remainder, for the Central and Northern lines, in four months afterwards. It is not, we believe, intended to depart from the policy of encouraging local manufacture of railway engines. The present case is exceptional, and engineers who are capable of building locomotives to suit the requirements of the department at a fair margin beyond English prices will have every opportunity in future of offering for the work. The result will probably be that, in the case of railway wagons and carriages, the majority of our locomotives will be built in the colony, and the less reason to that extent encouraged.

Visitors from the Lake Country (says the New Zealand Herald) state that Lakes Taupo and Rotokahaki have considerably increased in height, and are also Tarawera. The site of the old Rotokahaki Lake is now filled up with water, and the lake is larger than before the eruption. There is a probability, it is said, of the water breaking through the sandy embankment and making its way to the Arctic. There are a number of steam-boats on the margin of the lake, and the fumes arising from the rift on Mount Tarawera indicate that there is still some activity. There are places on the mountains where a stick driven through the top layer of stuff becomes ignited with the heat. In some localities the fern is springing up fresh and green again.

The officers engaged in the compilation of the Redfern electoral roll desire to state that they will be glad if owners of unoccupied land in the electorate will make it convenient to call at the Redfern Police Station, and the officers will be pleased to advise them thereto, so as to allow time for inquiry to be made.

Tax report of the Redfern Hospital for the week ended January 19, 1889, is as follows:—Admitted, 26 males, 24 females, total 52; discharged, 46 males, 23 females, total 69; deceased, 1 male, 1 female, total 6; total, 106 males, 66 females, total 245; casualty treated, but not admitted, 69.

A member of the Marine Board was held yesterday afternoon. Theodore Bootham, master of the schooner Heath, which was wrecked off Cape Three Points, was called out to show cause why his certificate should not be suspended or cancelled.

He stated that he thought he was steering a course which would have taken the vessel clear of danger. The board suspended his certificate for three months. The president then announced the decision of the board with regard to the loss of the ketch Integrity, which foundered off Broken Bay whilst on a voyage from Camelon Haven to Sydney. Captain Nixon announced that the board had decided that the abandonment of the vessel was justifiable, and that no evidence had been adduced upon which any charge could be founded against the captain, J. L. Ferguson.

The board proceeded to take the statement of the captain of the brig Woolley, which was disabled during a gale whilst on the voyage from Sydney to the Solomon Islands; but as the evidence showed that the vessel was only disabled, and managed to reach her destination, the board decided that the case was not one for further investigation.

Tax following resolution was passed by the committee of the Albany Vine and Fruit Growers' Association on the 11th instant, and requested it be presented to the Vine Disease Board as early as convenient:—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, any further experimenting upon phylloxera infected vines with alleged species is not only useless, but dangerous, as tending needlessly to postpone that complete eradication of the vines by uprooting and burning, from which alone a complete extermination of the disease may be expected."

M. B. N. Jones has been the recipient of a very handsome present from the members of the intercolonial boating team. The team played in Melbourne against the Victorian boaters, and the wins on that occasion greatly assisted in their arrangements by Mr. Jones. In recognition of that gentleman's kindness the present referred to was decided upon. It consisted of a beautiful silver tea and coffee service. The presentation was made at the Glebe dinner on Saturday by Mr. J. T. Tooley.

The first children's religious service ever held at Sand Sea was presided over by Rev. Wm. J. Anderson, M.F.A., on Sunday. The singing was under the direction of Mr. W. Ross, who had very creditably prepared the young singers.

Sergeant-Commander JAMES BEADMAN, who is leaving Balmain, was the recipient of an address and diamond ring on Friday night at Leam's Hotel. The address and ring were presented by Alderman E. H. Bushman, the mayor of the borough, on behalf of a number of residents in recognition of Mr. Beadman's efficiency as an officer of the Marine police force. Among those present were Alderman Cyther and Burnie. Mr. Beadman replied to the compliment in suitable words.

We are in view in Messrs. Ellington and Co.'s window, 384, George-street, a very handsome solid dinner and dessert service which has been made at the firm's English works, in the order of a Queen Anne pattern. This service comprises a dinner service, a dessert service, a tea service, and a coffee service, all in solid silver. The dinner service is of plain but massive design, and the dessert service is of Egerton pattern. In all, the weight of the plate is 3000ozs., and it can be packed in a specially-constructed brass-bound oak case. The whole of the work fully maintains the high reputation of the firm of Messrs. Ellington and Co., whose English establishments are at Birmingham, London, and Liverpool. The plate will remain on the George-street window for a few days longer.

AUSTRALIAN EIGHT-OAR CREW FOR ENGLAND.

MELBOURNE, MONDAY.

Both the licensed victuallers and the licensed publicans have observed for some time past that the numerous cases of typhoid fever in the wards are always injuriously affected by the visits of relatives and friends. For this reason they feel it their duty, not to allow visitors to see their patients, except at the usual hours on Sundays. They have arrived at this determination very reluctantly, and the decision has been made by the officers of the crew.

The exploring expedition which shortly leaves Adelade under the auspices of the Geographical Society, will be supplied by the Woods and Forest Department with quantities of carob, date, and papaya seed, intended to be sown during the journey. The Conservator of Forests is of opinion that all the seeds may not spring up, but it is possible that some will. He has reason to believe that the climate in the far North is eminently adapted for the growth of the date. A vote of £1000 was recently passed, mainly through the efforts of Mr. E. F. Taylor, for the purchase of planting date palms in the north. It is the intention of the Conservator of Forests to visit the far North, taking about 400 trees, to be planted at Alice and Strangways Spring, and other watering points.

THOMAS F. THOMPSON, Returning Officer.

TO THE ELECTORS OF EAST SYDNEY.

Esteemed Friends.—I have the honour to announce myself a CANDIDATE for RE-ELECTION.

Having two years since been returned by you in the previous Assembly, which—so far as the late Assembly was concerned—was up to the time of the dissolution, loyally supported by the whole of the electors of this electorate, I have the honour to nominate myself again for the Electorate of East Sydney.

This being so, I vote for Mr. McMillan's motion, which I have the honour to support, and which I trust will be carried, so that the colony should not have to be handed over to a party in whom the House then, and the country only two years since had.

Had Mr. Dibbs had the candour to say that carrying the resolution would mean a dissolution the poll would, no doubt, have been granted, but instead he having believed there was a majority in the House possessing its confidence and willing to carry on the business of the country.

He has, however, given an account of his stewardship, and the day of election of giving an account of my stewardship, but I take this opportunity of saying that I have at all times been a member of the Government, and that the colony should not have to be handed over to a party in whom the House then, and the country only two years since had.

The results of this slight amendment of Free Trade are these:—a surplus of £150,000 instead of a deficit of £125,000; an increase in the revenue of £1,200,000 (the revenue for 1888 being £3,000,000, while that for 1887 was £1,800,000); a decrease in the cost of Government amounting to fifteen shillings (18d.) per head of the population of the colony; an increase in the imports in the savings bank; and an all-round improvement in our national finance.

No honest man can deny that things are better now than they were two years ago; that there is more employment for labour, and more opening for the profitable use of capital, and I believe that had a larger measure of Free Trade been given to us, the improvement would have been even greater than it is.

It is impossible that any country could recover completely under any policy, in the short space of two years from the effects of four years of Mr. Dibbs's Government. Will much more be done? Much, indeed, is left undone! But is Mr. Dibbs the man to do what is wanted? That is the question.

Will you again give over the Government of the country to the man who for over four years tricked you, abused your confidence, lied the Civil Service with stories against the advice of the principal officers, pled for deficit and tax upon the until the patience of the country was exhausted, and then, armed with power from every sign of ignominy?

Remember that this is the Jennings Ministry over again, only without the responsible figure of Sir Patrick Jennings. Moore, Dibbs, Garvin, Lyne, Fletcher, and Suter were all members of the Jennings Cabinet, and nothing can be expected from them but continuance of the old policy of corruption.

The whole of more than four candidates being nominated and a poll demanded, the polling will take place on SATURDAY, the 3rd day of February next, commencing at 8 a.m.
